1. "Work on the Second Ward meeting house has begun and it is the intention of those in charge to push the building toward completion as soon as possible." (March 20, 1914).

2. "Bishop Rasband reports that the building will be completed and paid for this week. The building is a credit to the Ward and a material addition to Center Street. A few more substantial building on this street would add very greatly to the good appearance of our town." (September 11, 1914).

3. "The brick work on the new meeting house of Heber Second Ward will be completed this week and the roof will assume position immediately thereafter." (September 19, 1914).

By December of 1915, the building was ready for dedication. It was built to seat 400 people and on the day of the dedication, 390 individuals were in attendance to hear Elder Francis M. Lyman of the Council of Twelve offer the dedicatory prayer.

In his financial report, Bishop Rasband noted that the entire cost of the building, with furnishings, was $19,415.74. For its time, it was considered the finest church building in the Wasatch Stake. Because of its central location, the Heber Second Ward building has been a favorite gathering place for community and civic functions.
